INFLUENTIAL WOMEN IN MEDICINE

WESLEY ANNE BRADY

As Medical Director of the Women's Wellness Institute of Dallas, Dr. Wesley Anne Brady believes that women need to take better care of themselves. "Far too often, women lapse into an antiquated stereotype that they should serve everyone else first and neglect themselves, which is a dangerous myth," she says. "The 'suffer in silence' era is over." Today, Dr. Brady helps her clients of all ages maximize their sexual health with a comprehensive range of treatments proven to address conditions, such as urinary incontinence, painful intercourse, or low libido. "With my background as an Ob-Gyn, my years of surgical experience in vaginal reconstruction, our talented staff, and our new location in Preston Center, we offer women both the medical expertise and the wide compliment of treatments to address sexual wellness that few practices can," she explains. "We are here to help optimize our patients' health, improve their self-confidence, and restore intimacy." Furthermore, Dr. Brady prides herself on nurturing a women-led team comprised of wives, mothers, daughters, and grandmothers. That perspective bolsters the client experience and has given the Women's Wellness Institute of Dallas a renowned global reputation. "When I decided to move beyond conventional Obstetrics and Gynecology in 2006, very few surgeons were offering vaginal reconstruction," she says. "I built a practice here offering women that specific option. Other physicians have called me influential for taking that path, and I'm proud to have helped lead the way."
